AUGUST GUEST SPEAKER

Ms. Marilyn Iglesias
Mathews, Virginia

"The Life of Captain Sally Tompkins, CSA"

Tonight we will be joined by Miss. Sally Louisa Tompkins of Mathews County, Virginia. She will regale us with stories of her life and in particular the role she undertook during the WBTS when she convinced Judge Robertson of Richmond to allow him to turn his home into the 'Robertson Hospital.' We will learn why President Jefferson Davis commissioned Sally as a Captain in the Confederate cavalry. Sally was selective in which patients came to her hospital and she gave priority to Mathews and Gloucester county soldiers. She attributed the low mortality rate at her hospital to "the best nursing and perfect cleanliness." Postwar she devoted herself to the Episcopal Church and gave liberally of her means and service. When the Confederate Women's Home was established on Grace Street in Richmond, Sally, whose monies were depleted, was invited to live as an honored guest. In 1905 she was elected an honorary President of the Virginia UDC. Sally passed away on July 26, 1916 and is buried at Christ Church in Mathews County.

Marilyn has had a lifelong passion for early American history, specifically our history up through the middle 19th century. In addition to her membership in the Sally Tompkins Chapter of the UDC, Marilyn is also a member of the Cricket Hill and Comte de Grasse chapters of the DAR and the Mathews County Sesquicentennial Committee. She is fascinated by Sally Tompkins and determined that the best way to bring Sally to a wider audience was to provide a first person portrayal and take Sally on to road to visit a wide variety of organizations.

Bring a guest to our August meeting. Supper will be served at 6:30 and we will introduce our speaker at 7:30. Our buffet costs $17 per person. Non members please contact Ken Parsons at 757-564-0878 for reservations.

VA FLAGGERS I-95 BATTLE FLAG PROJECT

The VA Flaggers are THRILLED to announce that they have finalized a lease to acquire property adjacent to Interstate 95, just south of Richmond, and will be erecting a 50-foot pole, on which a 10-foot by 15-foot Confederate Battle Flag will fly 24/7, 365 days of the year.

The flag will serve to welcome visitors and commuters to Richmond, and remind them of our honorable Confederate history and heritage. The location is also historically significant, as Confederate troops are believed to have camped in and around the area during the Bermuda Hundred Campaign.

If you are interested in contributing to the project, please make a check payable to "Virginia Flaggers" (Note: I-95 Project in memo) and mail to:

CONFEDERATE GRAVESITES

(Contributed by Historian/Genealogist Compatriot Fred Boelt)

Robert Travis Armistead was born in Williamsburg on July 22, 1844. He was the oldest son of Robert Henry Armistead and his wife Julia Samuel Travis, a marriage that united to ancient tidewater families. Robert H. Armistead received a law degree from the College of William and Mary in 1832, practiced law, served as Commonwealth Attorney, a director for the Eastern Lunatic Asylum, and a trustee for the Methodist Church, all before the war broke out in 1861.

Robert Travis Armistead attended the Williamsburg Military School before enrolling at the College of William and Mary in 1858, working toward a law degree. Concerned about local defense following John Brown's raid, his father raised the Williamsburg Junior Guard in December 1859, but resigned as company commander in June 1860. The 68th Virginia Militia formed the core of the Guard.

Robert T. left the college and joined the Old Dominion Dragoons, 3rd Virginia Cavalry, on June 1, 1861, in Yorktown. Being under age, he mustered in as a private with the consent of his parents. This company was forming in neighboring Elizabeth City County, and he served with them throughout the war. From December 1861 through February 1862, Robert Armistead was on special duty for General Magruder. During the Battle of Williamsburg, Armistead and the 3rd Cavalry were positioned at Kingsmill to watch the flank. As Union troops approached, the 3rd Cavalry found themselves cut off from the main army and the town. They quickly mounted and swam across College Creek to escape.

For reasons not specified in his service record, Armistead was discharged as "physically unfit for duty" on July 23, 1862. His obituary stated that he had been wounded twice. The service record indicated one wound in 1863; perhaps the other wound prompted this discharge. Apparently, he had submitted an application to be commissioned a lieutenant prior to this, and his father wrote a letter promoting the application. However, the request was withdrawn September 1, 1862.

Armistead reenlisted in Richmond in November

1862, was absent on detached duty in July and August 1863, and was hospitalized at Chimborazo Hospital #4 from November through May 1864 with a shoulder wound and other maladies. His record showed that he was a courier for an unspecified time, and that he was paroled at Appomattox on April 9, 1865.

After the war, Robert Travis Armistead returned to Williamsburg where he read law and was admitted to the Bar in 1867. He practiced with his father, and later with his son in Williamsburg. On November 17, 1869, he married his cousin, Mary Frances Armistead (1845-1927) of Norfolk. They had four children, three daughters and a son, Frank Armistead, who became a lawyer, practiced with his father, and later became a judge in Williamsburg.

In 1889, Armistead was appointed Superintendent of Schools for the City of Williamsburg and served in that capacity through 1899. That year, he was elected Commonwealth Attorney for Williamsburg and James City County. He was active with the Masons and was also a warden at Bruton Parish Church for many years.

Robert Travis Armistead died on June 12, 1914. His funeral was held at Bruton Parish, and he was interred with Masonic rites in Cedar Grove Cemetery. Many Confederate veterans from the area also attended the funeral. His tombstone bears crossed Confederate flags. His wife, Mary Frances Armistead died on March 16, 1927. Her obituary stated that she was one of the seven women appointed to the ordnance department of the Confederacy, an unusual service for women during the war years.

AUGUST BOOK RAFFLE

“Crucial Moments of the Civil War”
Willard Webb – Editor, 1961, New York, Hard Cover, 350 pages

The editor has chosen 28 key moments during the conflict. Articles are written on each by leading historians or noted participants in the events.

“Stonewall of the West – Patrick Cleburne & the Civil War” Craig L. Symonds, 1997, Lawrence, Soft Cover, 300 pages

A fine biography of one of the Confederacy’s top generals. Traces Cleburne from Helena, Arkansas through his four years of service in the western armies of the Confederacy. Shiloh, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, the Atlanta Campaign, Jonesboro, Spring Hill and Franklin. These battles all featured Cleburne and his command and this biography studies the general, his men and their toils.

“Chattanooga – A Death Grip on the Confederacy” James L. McDonough, 1984, Knoxville, 1st Edition, Hard Cover, 300 pages

The best single book on the battles around Chattanooga in October and November of 1863. A study of how the Confederacy wasted their opportunity gained on the battlefield of Chickamauga.

AUGUST TRIVIA QUESTION:

What unit (north or south) had the greatest number of soldiers killed during the war?

When you research this you should find three other facts:

- 1. What was the unit responsible for killing them?
- 2. What was the unit that had the 3rd greatest number killed ?
- 3. Who was responsible for killing them?

Hint: There were only two units involved.
